Suggested Questions:

1. Your background represents a collection of stories – from Brooklyn to Harvard, history major, lawyer, trader and now CEO of Goldman Sachs. Can you take us through your journey and how you navigated each chapter? Was Goldman always in your plan?
2. There is a lot going on in the world that is affecting the markets, how, in your seat, do you try to make sense of it all and help advise your clients on what to do?
3. You have been at the firm for almost 35 years; what about that the firm has kept you here and how do you compare it now vs when you first started?
4. Students have more options than ever when it comes to starting a career – how would you today think through whether to join a bank or a tech company or a start-up firm?
5. During your time as CEO, the firm has taken a stand on a number of important social issues including LGBT rights, racial tensions and the recent immigration discussion. Why do you feel it's important to take a public stance on these topics?
6. Diversity is an important topic for all organizations. Why do you believe having a diverse workforce is so important? And, what does it mean for someone to bring their "whole self" to work?
7. What advice would you share with this audience of students as they think about building a successful career?
8. Lightning Round:
 - TV, phone or newspaper for the news
 - Text, e-mail or call
 - Coffee or tea
 - First job you ever had
 - Last movie you saw
 - Book you're currently reading
 - Favorite hobby
 - Favorite U.S. city (Other than New York City)
 - What are you most proud of
